THE ORGAN AND BONE MARROW TRANSPLANT PROGRAM REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 1995

Mrs. KASSEBAUM. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator KENNEDY, Senator FRIST, and myself, I introduce legislation which will further improve the quality and equity of solid organ and marrow transplantation.

We can all be proud of the solid foundation that private initiatives, supported by Federal funding, have created. However, now that this infrastructure is in place, I believe that it is time for Congress to reexamine the Federal role in the oversight and the financing of solid organ and bone marrow transplantation.

The partnership between the Government, the solid-organ transplant community, and the public has worked well. However, the recent experience with the heart transplant program in my own State of Kansas, or the public distrust voiced when Mickey Mantle received his liver transplant, reminds us that improvements need to be made.

In 1994, more than 18,000 solid organ transplants were performed. Yet, more than 41,000 other Americans still await an organ for transplantation. This disparity between the supply and the demand for organs to transplant confirms that continued Federal oversight is necessary to provide the public with a sense of fairness and trust. Even though Federal oversight is still required, we must consider alternatives to fund the vital functions of the organ transplant network.

The legislation we are introducing today stresses equity for all beneficiaries and proposes a balanced approach. Governmental oversight is maintained but clarified. The Organ Transplant Network remains responsible for the development of transplant policies, and the program remains grounded in the expertise of the transplant community.

The importance of transplant candidates, patients, and their families as the real consumers of transplant services is reconfirmed, and this legislation increases their voice in the process. In addition, the phase-in of a new "data management fee" will guarantee that future transplant services will continue uninterrupted.

Mr. President, the shortage of organs for transplantation is a problem which we, as a nation, have not yet solved. Recent medical studies have shown a continued reluctance by the American public to consent to organ donation when faced with the impending death of a family member. New and innovative approaches must be developed to increase the public's acceptance of organ donation. This legislation authorizes funding—obtained through a partnership among the government, the Nation's transplant centers, and the organ procurement organizations—to address the continued shortage of organs for transplantation. A single piece of legislation cannot be expected to correct the problem of insufficient organs for transplantation, but we believe that this proposal moves the transplant program in the right direction.

Unrelated-donor bone marrow transplantation poses a different challenge. The National Bone Marrow Donor Registry was developed to facilitate and to maximize the number of bone marrow transplants for patients who do not have a matched relative. The success of this program to recruit potential marrow donors has been admirable, but as noted in the recent past by the General Accounting Office, the number of resulting transplants has been quite modest.

Increasing the number of unrelated-donor bone marrow transplantations will likely require more than just expanding the potential marrow donor pool. Improvements in technology and scientific understanding of transplantation will need to be made. Because of these biologic limitations, I question continued Federal funding and the merits of a government-funded national bone marrow registry.

Therefore, Mr. President, this legislation reauthorizes the National Bone Marrow Donor Registry, it reconfirms the goal to increase unrelated-donor bone marrow transplants, and it provides advocacy services for patients and donors. This legislation also requests the Institute of Medicine to evaluate the future role of a government-funded marrow transplant program as a means to maximize the number of unrelated-donor bone marrow transplants.

I recognize that the present Federal budget constraints and the proposed reevaluation of the Federal role in transplantation have caused some concern. However, I believe this situation provides both the transplant communities and the Congress with a unique opportunity. This legislation is a carefully crafted plan for the future. It strives for equity for all beneficiaries, an appropriate degree of Government oversight, an evaluation of the future governmental role, an appropriate level of fiscal responsibility, and the development of a system to respond to the present and future transplantation needs.

As discussion of these issues develops, I would welcome any suggestions my colleagues or others may have for improving this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill and a summary be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1324

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Organ and Bone Marrow Transplant Program Reauthorization Act of 1995".
